TYPO3 Version:	6.2
Subject:	Implement LoggerInterface from PSR-3
Description
PSR-3 expects the \TYPO3\CMS\Core\Log\Logger to extend AbstractLogger which implements LoggerInterface. AbstractLogger contains the shorthand log methods like debug(), warning() or error(). These shorthands call the log() mehthod which is implemented in Logger.

It's not a requirement to extend AbstractLogger, we need simply to implement LoggerInterface one way or the other. But since the AbstractLogger is rather simple, it probably doesn't hurt to do it this way.

I agree.

We should only do it, if we think it makes sense for us. I don't see a real benefit in doing so.
