Subject:	Restructure functional frontend tests

Description

In the scope of enabling Extbase frontend rendering during functional test runs, the response object contains multiple data values for TypoScript ("default") and the called Extbase actions. Processing them all at once just has practical reasons to avoid additional frontend requests for any aspect.
To decouple the actual testing structure from assertions and constraints, a new Contraint namespace has been introduced.

[TASK] Restructure functional frontend tests

In the scope of enabling Extbase frontend rendering during functional test runs, the response object contains multiple data values for TypoScript ("default") and the called Extbase actions. Processing them all at once just has practical reasons to avoid additional frontend requests for each aspect.
To decouple the actual testing structure from assertions and constraints, a new Contraint namespace has been introduced.

The irre_tutorial extension has been enriched with an accordant frontend rendering for Extbase context to return structured JSON data like in the current frontend tests.

This change contains Extbase TypoScript which will be activated in a separate bugfixing change.
